Accessibility should not be viewed as a job specific title, task or skill – Everyone's Responsibility

Accessibility is Inclusion -- should be the Value and Mission of the Entire Organization. Everyone associated with the organization should understand what it means to provide inclusive services.

Are These Items/Services Accessible?

General

- Marketing (Websites/Social Media)
- Patient Services/Furniture/Signage/Etc.
- Healthcare Resources/Informational Brochures
- Paperwork (Admission/Discharge/Follow-up)
- Communication Services (In-Office/Phones)

Resources/Interactions

- KIOSKS
- Room Set-up / Exam Tables
- Menus
- Computers (can't see your face)
- Where you are standing in a room (can't see you)
- Masks (can't see you, can't hear you, can't understand you)
- Appointments (Cards)
- Counters / Staff Placement
- Staff Knowledge of Accessibility

Accessibility Basics

- Access Compliance Is REQUIRED - NOT OPTIONAL
- Budget for Accessibility!!!
- Disability Awareness Training for all administrators, employees including security staff), volunteers, associates and vendors serving your organization
- Procurement Policies/Procedures
- Pre-COVID vs. Post-COVID Services/Environments
- More people with disabilities -- AGING
- What do you know about accessibility?
- Understand Transportation Barriers Impacting Healthcare
- Get Started with Federal/State/Local Resources

How to Get Started: Visit sites that can provide the basics of the (ADA, 1990). Many of these sites offer FREE webinars on accessibility in general, and on specifics such as accessible healthcare. Subscribe to their email lists AND e-newsletters in order to learn about upcoming webinars and trainings.

Effective Communication Strategies

There are many technologies and methods of communication that are valuable when interacting with a person with a disability.

Communication options should be based on the needs of the individual. Do NOT assume that because one style or technology works for one person, that it will work for everyone.
